

New apprenticeships at Macnaught, training for the future...

Macnaught is continuing to rebuild a new generation of Australian tradesmen with four new apprentices joining our manufacturing team in 2011.

These young men will be trained in our state-of-the-art machine shop and soon be contributing to Macnaught quality and innovation for many years to come. Our answer to the Australian skill shortage is to provide rewarding careers to young people, not using it as an excuse to buy offshore. Macnaught is 100% committed to Lean Manufacturing and global competitiveness on Australian shores an essential ingredient that's kept us in the business for over 63 years. There's no wonder that Macnaught is the professionals' choice, they're built by professionals in the business
